CURRENT COLLABORATIONS

National Center for State Courts, Williamsburg, VA: Dr David Rottman (Principal Court Researcher), Dr Jennifer Elek (Senior Court Research Associate) Since 2012, I have been collaborating with researchers at the NCSC. In 2013, Dr Rottman and Dr Elek, Dr Francesco Contini (University of Bologna, National Research Centre of Italy), Emerita Professor Kathy Mack (Flinders University) and I convened an invitation-only workshop: Evaluating Judicial Performance held at the International Institute for the Sociology of Law IISJ (Oñati Spain), and co-sponsored by the Academy of the Social Sciences in Australia. It included academic and judicial participants from 10 countries, and multiple disciplines. In 2014 I initiated and obtained an ARC Discovery Grant to investigate Changing Judicial Performance: Emotion and Legitimacy with Dr Elek and Dr Rottman as formal Partner Investigators (PIs). During this collaboration I have spent time (in 2015, 2017, 2018, 2019) undertaking this comparative research at the National Center for State Courts and the PIs have spent similar time periods at Flinders University undertaking the joint research, including giving presentations to local judicial and academic audiences. Outcomes to date include four publications.

Dr Stina Bergman Blix, Sociology, University of Uppsala, Sweden

Dr Bergman Blix and I have collaborated on several projects investigating emotion and law, along with her colleague Professor Åsa Wettergren (Gothenburg University). We have co-written two articles comparing empirical methodological issues investigating emotion in courtroom settings in Australia and Sweden, and they have a chapter in my co-edited Judges, Judging and Humour. Dr Blix and I convened (with Professor Terry Maroney, Vanderbilt University, TN and Emerita Professor Mack (Flinders)) an invitation only workshop in May 2018 at IISJ on Judging, Emotion and Emotion Work with 24 participants from 11 countries and the disciplines of sociology, law, history, cultural studies, as well as judges officers. We are currently co-editing a special issue of the Oñati Socio-Legal Series containing articles from the workshop for final publication in December 2019.

Professor João Paulo Dias, Director, Centre for Social Studies, University of Coimbra, Portugal

Professor Dias is the lead Chief Investigator on a successful 2018-20 grant entitled: Quality of Justice in Portugal, on which I am a named participant, based at the Centre for Social Studies at the University of Coimbra, Portugal. It is funded (through competitive award) by the Portuguese Foundation for Science and Technology. This project will build on and replicate aspects of my research on job satisfaction and the judiciary. Professor Dias and I co-convened and co-chaired a panel entitled: 'Judicial professionals' working conditions' at the 30th Anniversary International Conference of the Research Committee on the Sociology of Law, International Institute for the Sociology of Law, Oñati, Spain, 20 June. I am a Visiting Scholar at Coimbra in 2019.

Professor Terry Maroney, Law School, Vanderbilt University, TN

Professor Terry Maroney is a pre-eminent US scholar of judging and emotion, from a legal and psychological perspective. As well as co-convening the IISJ workshop and co-editing the special issue, I have co-presented with Prof Maroney in the US and in Australia, and I have been invited by her to participate in funding applications to undertake research into the US judiciary, drawing on the approaches I pioneered in Australia.

Professor Rosemary Hunter, Law University of Kent at Canterbury, UK

Rosemary is a pre-eminent scholar of feminist judging with theoretical and empirical research achievements, in Australia and the UK, in family law, domestic violence and unrepresented litigants in the family jurisdiction. My current collaboration with Rosemary investigates feminist judging in the lower courts, and has resulted in one published article, another under review, and presentations to academic and judicial audiences. This work is an original contribution to the field, as most of the extant research and discussion relates to higher courts only and it distinguishes feminist judging from other more engaged approaches to judicial work – procedural fairness, therapeutic jurisprudence. We are planning a new project examining current judicial attitudes, experiences and practices in Australia.

Professor Cyrus Tata, Director for Law, Crime & Justice, Strathclyde University, Glasgow, Scotland

Professor Tata and I have worked together on issues of sentencing and criminal justice. He has invited me to participate in several conferences and workshops at Strathclyde University in 2017 and 2011. Most recently, we are collaborating on a book he is co-editing entitled: Remorse and the Ideal Defendant and the title of my chapter (co-authored with Kathy Mack) is ‘Emotion, feeling rules and the ideal defendant’.

Professor Leslie Moran, School of Law, Birkbeck, University of London, UK

Professor Moran is an eminent English socio-legal scholar and invited me to join the Judicial Images Network funded by the UK Arts and Humanities Research Council grant. We have presented together at the Law and Society Association meetings, the Working Group on the Legal Profession (a sub-group of the ISA’s Research Committee on the Sociology of Law), and at the workshop on Judging, Emotion and Emotion Work that I co-convened at the International Institute for the Sociology of Law in 2018. My co-edited book includes a chapter by Prof Moran: ‘What’s a Box of “Bakewell Tarts” Got to Do With It? Performing Gender as a Judicial Virtue in the Theatre of Justice’. I have been invited by Birkbeck to make a presentation at a Workshop celebrating his research in London in 2-2020.

Professor Cheryl Thomas, Faculty of Laws, University College London, UK

Professor Thomas leads path-breaking research on the professional judiciary in the UK, especially ongoing study of the working lives of judges, conducted on behalf of the judiciaries of England and Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland, the UK Judicial Attitude Survey (2014, 2016, to be undertaken again in 2019). We will commence a collaboration with her on a planned judicial survey in Australia, extending my previous three national surveys of the Australian judiciary, which provide the only benchmark data for the entire Australian judiciary.

Ms Carly Schrever, Judicial College of Victoria, Melbourne, Australia

Ms Schrever has undertaken the most extensive investigation in Australia of judicial stress and wellness from a psychological perspective. Working with her, we have secured the support of the heads of jurisdiction across all court levels for a new national judicial survey in Australia, extending my previous three national surveys of the Australian judiciary and drawing on Ms Schrever’s psychological expertise.
